OLD HICKORY WAGONS

Here are a few reasons why you should buy an Old Hickory Wagon: Rims are riveted each side of spokes. Dust proof thimble skains and boxes. Gears are heavy strapped and braced. Axles are strapped on instead of bolts going through the axle to weaken it. The Old Hickory is the old stand by wagon. See

NORTH DOMINION HAS BIG LIME FORMATION

If a limestone ledge on top of a mining prospect is any indication that there is copper underneath, the men at the head of the North Dominion Copper Mining and Development company, believe that they have struck it rich.

A photo has recently reached town showing an enormous limestone ledge directly on the property of the North Dominion company, and which according to those who know, augurs well for that company.

The ledge has been subjected to pressure, and has lifted in the center, forming a curve, presenting a peculiar formation. The lime is absolutely essential in the smelting of ores. In that case, the North Dominion people will have their lime directly at hand, and will not be forced to go out of the state to purchase it as some of the companies in that section are forced to do.

The mine is being promoted by the Lefkowitz brothers, who put Inspiration Needles on the New York curb, John S. Cook, a Globe banker, and others.

Hal Prince displayed orders covering more than 70,000 shares of the allotment of Miami Consolidated stock, turned over to him for distribution in the Phoenix district, and proved that he had been a busy man these last few days.

The Miami Consolidated stock, re-leased for distribution simultaneously in all the chief cities of the southwest, found an immediate demand. Reports of good sales come from Douglas, Tucson and even El Paso, where a large block was placed yesterday.

If the present demand continues, the local allotment of Miami Consolidated will be oversubscribed, according to Prince. The mine is being promoted by the Lefkowitz brothers, who put Inspiration Needles on the New York curb, John S. Cook, a Globe banker, and others.

Southwestern stockmen and farmers who desire to purchase breeding stock will have a splendid opportunity for doing so at the International Soil Products Exposition, which will be held at El Paso, October 14-24, 1916. A live stock section has been added to this great show, and a large number of pedigrees have been made, composed of the choicest animals from many of the best herds in the Southwest. Part of these are for sale and part for show purposes only.

In addition, car lot consignments of both pure bred and choice grade cattle will be on hand, so that the wants of almost any stockman can be provided for.

The registered cattle, horses, hogs and sheep will be housed within the Exposition grounds, while the car lot consignments, and all overflow, will be taken care of at the Santa Fe stock yards, which have been secured for this purpose. These yards are just across the Santa Fe tracks from the live stock section of the Exposition grounds proper, so that consignors who have animals in both places can look after all of them with convenience.

Space within the Exposition grounds proper is limited to the accommodation of about three hundred head. Most of this space is already reserved, and it is only those exhibitors who act quickly, who will be enabled to get in on the remaining space.

Only dairy cattle, hogs, horses and sheep will be received within the Exposition grounds during the first five days of the Exposition. The dairy cattle will be removed Wednesday evening, October 18, permitting the beef breeds to take possession Thursday morning, October 19, and remain until the close.

Dairy cattle, hogs, horses and sheep will be sold at public sale on Wednesday afternoon. The public sale of beef cattle will be held Monday, October 23. This live stock sale will be one of the greatest features of the big Exposition. No stockman or farmer should miss it.

The time is getting short for farmers and others who desire to have exhibits at the International Soil Products Exposition to make their entries. This great exposition will be held at El Paso this year, September 14 to 24. Competition is open to the world, and there are separate classes for dry-farmed products, in which irrigated products, or those grown under twenty-five inches of annual rainfall, cannot compete. The general classes are open to all products, whether grown under irrigation, dry-farming or otherwise. Premium lists and entry blanks may be procured from the secretary, International Farm Congress, El Paso. No entry fee is charged. Liberal cash premiums and valuable trophies are offered. To win a prize in an international competition is worth while, and there is no reason why farmers in the Southwest should not take down a large number of these offerings.

MINERS' SHORT COURSE OPENS ON OCTOBER 30

TUCSON, Oct. 5.—The Short Course for Miners at the University of Arizona starts on October 30th. Last year the short course was initiated upon a new plan—two weeks were devoted to every subject given, each subject relating directly to the one preceding and following it. This year the arrangement will be somewhat different. Last year the first six weeks were devoted to blowpipe analysis, mineralogy and elementary geology, and it was found that almost all students attended the three courses. Hence, this year from October 30th to December 2 these three subjects will be given simultaneously. The same applies to field geology, assaying and metallurgy courses, the flotation and the miners' courses.

The object of these courses is to give the working men of the state an opportunity of attending the university for a short period, in order to get in concentrated form information and training that will enable them to better their own positions. To many of these men practical knowledge has formed the major part of their education, while the fundamental principles on which their practical work depends is unknown to them. Because a man knows many minerals is precisely the reason why he should take a course in mineralogy. Many of our prospectors know much geology, but it is surprising what the past has revealed in the short course in geology. The University is organized to reach the people and to serve the people, and the short course is one of its many ways of so doing.

A pamphlet has been issued on the short course for miners which may be had upon application to the dean of the College of Mines and Engineering, University of Arizona, Tucson, Arizona.

NEW YORK ELECTIONS THE REPRESENTATION (Republican A. P. Leased Wire)
NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The republican state committee will meet here tomorrow to determine the final makeup of the party's list of presidential electors from this state. It was expected Chairman Frederick C. Tanner would meet George W. Perkins today to settle the question of how many progressives should be named, but the conference was not held.

Efforts are being made by Tanner to arrange for five days more of campaigning in this state by Charles E. Hughes. It was announced that the presidential candidate will speak in Albany with Governor Whitman on November 2.

Mr. Hughes, it was learned tonight, will appear at the Essex County Country Club, West Orange, N. J., Saturday. He will confer there with representatives of the moving picture interests, who seek to learn his views upon the question of a national censorship. After the conference, the candidate will be filmed.

MYRTLE STEADMAN PROVES BIG CARD

Reflecting the characteristics of each foreign artist, the studios of the different painters in "The American Beauty" are all distinct. Each artist is shown from the other by some racial traits of the owner that are hard to define, but are none the less evident. In this Pallas-Paramount photoplay the artists are shown assembled at a gay, cafe dinner party. The scene is being given by Perzani, the Italian artist, who has sold a picture. Such an event must be celebrated by all.

The host in his elegance and his emerald bride reflects his race. Beside him sits the bored and listless Englishman with monocle and faint mustache; next the handsome, voluble son of France; the gesticulating German; then the bulky Russian peasant with talent and a magnificent beard; and on his right the complacent, well-bred-looking American. As the stimulation of the wine, the music, the dancing, the line scene, and the dancing, stir their imaginations, each in his own way prides his ideal beauty. Each boasts of his national type. The contest resulting makes for a very clever plot and allows for some artistic scenes of classic posing. This incidental feature of Myrtle Steadman's starring vehicle at the Lamara theater is one touch in a fascinating story of the sea, the metropolis, studio life and homes of wealth.

Everyone who saw the first two Whiplash Smith pictures has asked when another would be brought. The question is answered in the screening of "The Manager of the B. and A." with Helen Holmes. The great railroad wreck, the blowing up of an engine, the fight in the roundhouse, the fire in the village of Antioch, and the daring rescue of the little city by the manager of the B. and A. with his private train which is forested to run through the forest fire. This is a film story with action as its middle name, and is one of the finest photographic accomplishments J. P. McGowne has turned out in the many years he has spent in the cinema. Arguing the feature is a fine one-reel children's comedy. The management says there is not a day goes by but what some mother asks, "Why don't you bring some children's pictures?" Here is the finest one that can be obtained anywhere, and it should be seen by every tot in the valley, for it is done with an entire cast of children. Pathe News real features the topical end of the splendid program of seven reels.

In the third episode of the serial film, "Liberty," the Mexican bandits try to take the American town corresponding to Columbus, on the border, and the best mimic fight of pictures is shown, when hundreds of Mexicans and American soldiers battle with each other in the smothering of the border town. "Liberty" is in many a tight place but she is so resourceful that she has no trouble to take care of her own and give a good account of the charge. "Liberty" is further augmented by three reels of pictures that are right out of the minds of the makers and the best that we have had so say the management of the popular little dime house.

seven Varieties. After a vegetarian banquet, Pete sneaks out to a chop-house, where he is amazed to find Christine Cadwalader, daughter of Christopher Cadwalader. Christine has been brought up on Prindle products, but she, like Pete, is not satisfied with vegetarian fare. It is a case of love at first sight, for they both find that they are one in loving a big, juicy steak. But Christopher is traffic manager of the Pennsylvania railroad, and he objects to Pete's suit, unless that individual can become a partner in his father's firm. That looks easy to Pete, and he rushes off to ask his father for the position. The elder Pringle happens to be peevish at his son because the youth has neglected to complete the program up to the regulation length paraded on time. He contrasts the
